HUMAN BODY FACTS

The human bone, especially the femur, is about four times stronger than concrete.

You go to sleep and wake up to two different sizes, being tallest right after getting out of bed but shrinking during the day by being weighed down by the forces of gravity.

When you blush, your stomach lining also reddens.

In a female's ovaries, there are over 500,000 eggs but only 400 of them will ever get the chance to create a life.

Your feet have about 500,000 sweat glands and have the ability to produce up to a pint of sweat each day.

Your nose has quite the memory, and has the ability to remember 50,000 different scents.

The air from a sneeze can travel at unbelievable speeds of 100 mph or more.
